

Florida: Marco Island Shop celebrates opening

E&V at the heart of island's business and property network

On 30 January, 2009, Licence Partners Helen and Peter Donaghy and Bea Bolsen, of the new Engel & Völkers Shop on Marco Island celebrated their official Opening with 100 guests and clients from all over the world. The Shop is well positioned in a busy area of town, with nearby shops, restaurants and cinema as well as being just across from the Hilton hotel and the beach. The opening party was a great success and generated five new listings and opened up a number of business opportunities for the future.

At about 24 square miles in size, Marco Island is the largest of Florida's 10,000 islands in the Gulf of Mexico. It is located only 16 miles south of Naples and 45 miles south of South West Florida International Airport in Fort Myers. It is connected by two bridges to the mainland. Over 15,000 permanent residents live on the island; the six mile-long crescent white sand beach offers sunbathing, shelling and brilliant sunsets and is rated as one of the world's best. During winter season, the island is a destination for more than 35,000 vacationers and seasonal residents, because of the mild tropical climate.
